

Sax and Drama at Reenascreena Festival

Contributed by Calvin Jones
Wednesday, 20 July 2005

It was Friday 25th June, and the normally quiet village of Reenascreena was gearing up for a big night. Mark Van Damme and friends were bringing their unique blend of Jazz and Latino Samba music to Reenascreena Cross, and the brand new Reenascreena Drama Group would give its inaugural offering. Expectations were high, and an air of anticipation developed as the crowd slowly gathered.

First up on the drama front was RCAG's very own Ted Coakley and colleague performing an entertaining sketch from one of John B. Keane's works. Dramatic talent obviously runs in the family, as he was followed by daughter Amanda, who gave a very convincing performance.

Then came Noel Fitzpatrick, who gave a superb and incredibly funny rendition of "The Chastitute!", and to cap off the drama Con O'Callaghan delivered the Bishop's Sermon from "The Field" with considerable aplomb.